WAGON CRUSHES OUT BOY'S LIFE

Paul Slaybaugh, 10 Years Old,
Instantly Killed by Heavy Vehicle.

MISJUDGED DISTANCE

Child Stood Beside Barn as Wagon
Passed; Wooden Bolster, Projecting,
Punctured Lungs Without Warning.

Caught and crushed between a large hay wagon and a side of the barn, Paul Slaybaugh, 10-year-old son of Garfield Slaybaugh, 644 York street, this place, was instantly killed this morning at 10 o'clock on the farm of John Groscost, Straban township, near Hunterstown.

A wooden bolster on the wagon caught the young boy as he stood against the side of the barn, turned him around and punctured his lungs, causing death immediately.

The young boy, who for the past three years has been making his home with Mr. and Mrs. Groscost, was helping his foster father at the barn this morning, when the accident occurred.

Mr. Groscost and the boy were working in the barn and had taken the large hay wagon outside. It was while it was being taken back into the barn that the fatality happened. The boy was standing along side of the barn while the wagon was passing.

Apparently the boy misjudged the distance between himself and the wagon and he was caught by the bolster which projected several inches from the side of the wagon. Before he could make an outcry, he was pinned to the side of the barn.

Mr. Groscost immediately extricated the youth, but life was extinct. Dr. J. H. Hildebrand, of Biglerville, was summoned. He in turn notified Dr. C. G. Crist, county coroner, who empowered Dr. Hildebrand to make an inquest which was thought not to be necessary.

The child is survived by his father and the following sisters and brothers: Walter and Marjorie, of Gettysburg; Beulah, of York Springs; Howard, of Biglerville; Dale, of Gettysburg, R. 1; Earl, of Heidlersburg, and Dorothy, of Newville.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

RAIN SPOILS PICNIC

Four Hundred Persons In Affair At New Oxford.

Four hundred persons attended the joint picnic of St. Andrew's Bible Class of the Gettysburg Methodist Episcopal church, and the Armour Bearers' Bible Class of the York Methodist Episcopal church, at Diehl's Dam on the Little Conewago Creek, near New Oxford, Saturday afternoon.

A feature of the afternoon was a baseball game between teams chosen from the two organizations. The local team, captained by Harry Sadler, was blanked by the score 1 to 0. The heavy hitting of the Rev. Harry Daniels, pastor of the local church, was a feature of the contest. David King, of York, was the captain of the Armour Bearers' team.

The picnic came to an abrupt ending about 5 o'clock when a thunder storm broke over the grounds, driving everyone to shelter.

Joseph T. Mahon, East Middle street, is teacher of the St. Andrew's Bible Class.

1st AND 2nd TONIGHT

First and Second Wards will be opponents in a Ward League baseball game on the Playground diamond this evening at 6:15 o'clock. Cromer and Timmins will be on the serving and receiving ends respectively for Second Ward, while Armour and Weiser will be the battery for First Ward.

WELCOME RAINS BRING DAMAGE

Thunderstorms Saturday and Sunday Exhibit Many Freaks of Nature.

DELUGED SOME SECTIONS

Other Portions Are Missed by Heavy Torrents Which Were Accompanied by Wind and Lightning Damage.

Heavy thunder storms both Saturday and Sunday evenings brought welcome relief to the farmers whose crops were suffering from drought, although they did little toward lowering the uncomfortably high temperatures which have gripped this part of the country.

Although hail damage in surrounding counties is expected to amount to serious proportions, as far as could be learned Adams county escaped that destruction accompanying the wind and rain storms. Hail damage, it is feared, has reduced the prospective fruit crop in Franklin county, particularly in the vicinity of Caledonia Park, and trees and wheat fields were battered to ribbons southeast of Littlestown, and around Westminster.

Cashtown reports rain in welcome quantities both Saturday and Sunday. Although the wind was high, no damage is thought to have been incurred.

Fairfield was compelled to stand by helpless and watch the storms break all around the town and vicinity without sufficient rain falling there to lay the dust.

Little or no rain fell around Flora Dale and Guernsey on Sunday night, but some little was visited upon that country Saturday evening.

Littlestown was well drenched by both storms, and while farmers and fruit growers are well pleased with the effects of the rain, they declare still more would be of benefit. High winds which accompanied the storm in the town blew down two chimneys on houses owned by Edward Spangler, and limbs and branches were torn from shade trees in the streets, but little other damage has been reported.

The force of the wind Saturday night is believed to have reached its height along the Lincoln Highway between Abbottstown and York. Along this 15-mile stretch of highway, trees were uprooted and thrown across the road, temporarily blocking it. Huge limbs torn loose by the gale fell across telephone wires at many places, and even broke poles down.

State Highway department employees were rushed to the scene, and with the aid of axes and tractors soon cleared the road for traffic. Telephone linemen were busily engaged Sunday repairing the wires and poles and restoring severed communication.

Roofless dwellings were left in the wake of the storm, trees were uprooted and crops damaged. Even cattle standing in the fields were struck down by the lightning which accompanied the storm. So numerous and scattered were the cases of damage reported that it has been impossible as yet to estimate the losses sustained.

Proprietor of "Hot Dog" Restaurant Is In "Hot Water" For Noisy Place

Ernest Kranias, Greek Manager, is Charged with "Conducting Disorderly Place of Business, and is Threatened With Injunction Proceedings For Disturbing Would-be Sleepers At Eagle Hotel.

Ernest Kranias, a Greek, proprietor of the "Texas Hot Dog" restaurant in Chambersburg street, was "in hot water" today.

In addition to facing a charge of conducting a disorderly place of business, he was threatened with injunction proceedings by George W. Lynch, proprietor of the Eagle Hotel.

Kranias was haled before Justice of the Peace J. L. Hill this morning to answer charges of conducting a noisy and disorderly business establishment. At the conclusion of the hearing, he was released under $200 bail for court. Bail was furnished by John Highland, Chambersburg street.

Charge of conducting a noisy and disorderly establishment was preferred by Chief of Police A. V. Weikert, who testified at the hearing that he was called to stop noise makers at the "hot-dog" stand early Sunday morning. Other witnesses were Jacob Ramer, night clerk at the Eagle Hotel, Lester Reinecker, Jesse Washington, colored, John Miller, L. D. Stitley and F. R. Staley.

Night Clerk Ramer's testimony was the most damaging. He said that noise from the "hot-dog" establishment emanate every night, culminating as a rule after midnight, when guests at the hotel, next door, are trying to sleep. Mr. Ramer said that on several occasions guests have complained of the noises and odors coming from the "weenie" restaurant.

FIRE COMPANY TAKES IN $1950

Four-Day Festival and Food Sale
Was Unprecedented Success.

Late Saturday night, the Gettysburg fire company brought to a close its four-day festival and food sale, the most successful affair of its kind ever held by that organization. Starting with a large crowd on Wednesday evening, the festival and food sale patronage grew nightly until Saturday when it shattered all previous records. Saturday night's crowd, it is estimated, was twice as large as that of the best night preceding. Receipts on Saturday night amounted to $625. Total receipts for the four nights totalled $1950. The amount of money cleared will not be known for several days.

The crowd on Saturday night was almost riotous at times. Hundreds of men and women, boys and girls were served with ice cream and cake. In that section of the fire engine house where the "wheel of fortune" was being spun, the crowd was so dense that once inside it was difficult to get out. Those in charge of the wheel found it difficult to circulate among the people to sell chances.

"The festival and food sale was an unprecedented success," James B. Aumen, fire chief, said this morning. "We never dreamed of taking in almost $2000, and the showing is most gratifying to every member of the fire company. The committee in charge and I wish to thank everyone who stood by us in making the festival and food sale a success. They can be assured the fire company will stand by them in time of need."

The festival and food sale committee was composed of D. C. Stallsmith, chairman; M. E. Crouse, Leroy Fissel, A. J. Florence, Joseph Codori, James R. Aumen, William G. Weaver, Rufus Bushman, Percy Miller and George A. McClellan.

Western Maryland Brakeman Avoids
Death by a Hair.

Fellow workmen on the Western Maryland railroad today told of how William C. Rollins, a brakeman, saved his life at Thomasville on Sunday by using presence of mind.

While working on a switch near that station, Rollins' foot was caught in the guard rail and he was unable to extricate the member. As spectators watched the rapid approach of a shifting engine with horror, Rollins reached around and seized the guard rail of the locomotive.

In this manner he was able to draw his foot free and pull himself up on the moving engine and to safety. He is in the York Hospital with severe injuries to his leg.

Miss Fannie V. Holland, of Baltimore, and Charles J. Jinsa, also of Baltimore, were married Saturday by the Rev. Harry Daniels at the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church on Baltimore street.

60" ANNIVERSARY PROGRAM GIVEN

Drive For Expense of Bringing Troops is Under Way.

WILL PICK CAMP SITE

Activities to Start With Sunday, July
1, Getting Well Under Way With Maneuvers on Monday.

Gettysburg was one of the busiest towns in southeastern Pennsylvania today while plans for the Sixtieth anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg were being worked out by those in charge.

Announcement of a tentative program of events for July 1, 2, 3 and 4, and the selection of Clyde L. Bream, Carlisle street, as general supervisor for the Sixtieth anniversary celebration for the Boosters' Club, the Corporal Skelly post and the local camp, Sons of Veterans, were the outstanding developments today.

This afternoon, the drive for $1,000, which will be required to pay the town's share of the expense of having Federal troops here, got under way. Clyde Bream is acting as head of the drive for funds in addition to his other duties in connection with the celebration.

Major Courtland Nixon, commandant of the R. O. T. C. unit at Gettysburg College, was taken into consultation this morning on the selection of a suitable camp site. Every effort will be made to have the soldiers encamped near town.

When a site has been decided upon, an advance officer from Fort Myer, the headquarters of Battery B, 16th Field Artillery, will come to Gettysburg and assist in preparing it for the troops which are expected here Sunday, July 1, to remain twelve days.

July 1, according to the tentative program of events in connection with the Sixtieth anniversary, is registration day for the veterans of Blue and Gray who are expected to come here for the occasion. The registration book will be kept at the Corporal Skelly post room. Pastors of the various churches in Gettysburg will be asked to preach special sermons on that day.

At 8:30 Sunday evening, a sacred band concert will be given in Center Square by the Citizens' Band.

Monday is the "big day" of the Sixtieth anniversary. In the forenoon, the scene of activities will be Spangler's Spring and its vicinity. This was selected as a suitable place, since history records that troops from the Union and Confederate Armies mingled in one communion in drinking water from the historic Spring. At 9 o'clock, Monday morning, there will be a band concert at the Spring. One hour later, a demonstration by (Continued on Second Page)

WILLIAM SMITH

William Smith, of Gardner, R. D., died Saturday morning at the Carlisle Hospital, it is learned here. Death was caused by dropsy and complications. He was aged 79 years, 4 months and 10 days.

His parents were the late William and Catherine Smith, of Cumberland county.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. E. J. Wise, Boiling Springs, and Mrs. William Weigle, Carlisle; two sons, Oscar Smith, of Boiling Springs, and Ray Smith, Gardner, R. D.; a sister, Mrs. Anna M. Kuhn, of Mt. Holly Springs; twenty-one grandchildren, and twenty-six great grandchildren.

Funeral services from the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. J. Wise, at Boiling Springs, Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Wagner; further services at Mt. Victory Church at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. David Marsh. Interment in the Mt. Victory cemetery.

FIRST BLOCK DANCE

The first block dance of the season will be held on Thursday evening of this week, under the auspices of the Albert J. Lentz American Legion post. The dance will be staged in front of the Gettysburg High school building on York street. George Hamme's orchestra has been secured to furnish music.

DIRECT TRAFFIC

State Police were called to direct traffic on the Lincoln Highway at Piney Mountain Inn Sunday afternoon, on account of the large number of cars parked on both sides of the road in the vicinity of the swimming pool. The State troopers were from the Chambersburg substation. The swimming pool was jammed with bathers throughout the day.

5 L. R. STEEL MEN APPEAR IN COURT

Sixth Official Scheduled To Be Brought Up For Indictment.

Five officials of the defunct L. R. Steel corporation, which had offices in Hanover and York and which disposed of many thousands of dollars worth of its stock among residents of this county, were arraigned before Justice Hinkley in the supreme court at Buffalo, New York, last week when grand jury indictments against six former officers and directors were returned after a week of investigation conducted before the jury by District Attorney Guy B. Moore and Deputy Attorney General Hugh Reilly.

Plead Not Guilty

All five of the defendants arraigned pleaded not guilty and were admitted to bail. Two of the indictments were secret.

The defendant named in one of them appeared in court and was arraigned with those in the four open indictments. The sixth official indicted has not yet been before the court. It was reported that he would probably appear for arraignment today. One no-bill was returned.

Those Indicted

Indicted and arraigned Friday were: Walter M. Wilkins, former general counsel for the Steel companies and head of the L. R. Steel corporation when it was thrown into bankruptcy on April 30, shortly after the sudden death of Leonard R. Steel on a train near Toledo, charged with receiving commissions in violation of a section of the state corporation laws relative to stock sales.

Paul F. Chase, former head of the L. R. Steel Service corporation, indicted on four counts of grand larceny in connection with the sale of Steel stock.

Arthur J. Todd, former superintendent of branches of the L. R. Steel Service corporation, indicted on three counts of grand larceny in connection with the sale of Steel stocks.

James R. Nicholson, former treasurer of L. R. Steel Inc., and director of several of the companies, charged with receiving commissions in violation of the corporation laws.

Francis J. Rohr, former president of the Steel Realty Development company, appeared in court and pleaded not guilty to accepting commissions in violation of the law.

Held In Bail

Chase and Todd were held in $7,500 bail each. Wilkins, Nicholson and Rohr were admitted to $1,000 bail.

Gerald K. Rudolph, former director of L. R. Steel publicity, and a director of the Mary Lincoln Candy Shops, who was before the grand jury during the investigation, was voted a no-bill. Mr. Rudolph said he was not connected with the Steel enterprises at the time of the crash.

Owing to the proximity of the summer recess it was indicated that none of the defendants would be brought to trial before the fall term of the court.

JAMES MCKENNA DIES

James McKenna, a native of Ireland, died at the county home Sunday, aged 79 years. Mr. McKenna came to the United States from Ireland when a boy and settled in the vicinity of New Chester. He lived in Straban township until six years ago when he went to live at the county home. Funeral services were held this afternoon, conducted by the Rev. Father Mark E. Stock. Interment in the Catholic Cemetery here.

SIREN GETS WORKOUT

The Gettysburg fire company's new electrical siren sounded its first alarm Sunday morning when the company was called out to extinguish a chimney fire at the home of Andrew Timbheys, colored, South Washington street. The blaze was soon under control, with the use of hand extinguishers. The damage was slight.

TO GET LINE ON WHEAT

R. E. Underwood, Adams county farm agent, today issued a call for all farmers having Pennsylvania-44 wheat to be used for seed purposes to report to him at once. According to Agent Underwood approximately 166 acres in Adams county are planted in the seed variety.

RAIN STOPS PARTY

Because of the storm Saturday evening, it was necessary to postpone the straw ride from St. Mary's Church in Fairfield to the Pechee home. The event is scheduled to take place this evening.

GOT THE LICENSE

A marriage license was issued this morning by J. Robert Hartman, clerk of the courts, to James William Smith, of Forbes, Road, and Miss Rosie Myrtle Campbell, of Latrobe, this State.

PITTSBURGH TO MARK HIGHWAY

As a Result of Publicity Action
Is Now Coming To A

TWO ROUTES PROPOSED

Both May Be Marked as Lincoln Highway, Allowing Motorists to Take Their Choice. One is Through City.

As the result of publicity given Pittsburgh's failure to plainly mark the route of the Lincoln Highway within the city limits, the Pittsburgh City Council, Director C. A. Rook, of the Department of Public Safety, and representatives of the Pennsylvania Lincoln Highway Association will meet in the "smoky city" on Tuesday to settle upon a route for the Highway through the city.

The Public Safety Committee of the Pittsburgh Council last week requested Director Rook to prepare legislation to be introduced in Council today, designating the route of the Lincoln Highway through Pittsburgh.

The Boulevard of the Allies has been proposed by the highway association as part of a new route, but some objection is raised to this and it was argued by a Pittsburgh City Councilman recently that a hearing should be granted at which the automobile dealers and others affected by the proposed change of route could present their views.

Howard C. Mittinger, manager of Hoffman's Hotel here, and secretary-treasurer of the Pennsylvania Lincoln Highway Association, will not be able to attend the meeting in Pittsburgh on Tuesday because of the press of business now in connection with the Boosters' Club's participation in the celebration of the Sixtieth anniversary next week. Mr. Mittinger is secretary of the Club.

The Boulevard of the Allies route, however, is around the downtown business section. Supporters of having this route marked as the Lincoln Highway say it would reduce traffic congestion in the downtown business section. Opponents declare that to remove the Highway from the business section would be a disaster.

WINTER GRAINS POOR

Drought Last Fall Blamed For Poor
Stubble and Grain Crops in Section.

It's weather this spring, tardiness and the has continued since the case of winter the poor start received the principal factors the subnormal condition and grain crops, in the bureau of statistics, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Winter wheat, spring wheat, rye and oats indicate a condition that is ten or more per cent below normal for this season of the year. Hay prospects are even lower, being given as only 84 per cent of normal. The indications point to a drop in the total production and average acre yields of the respective crops as compared with the estimated production, in 1922.

The report of the bureau of statistics is as follows:

Winter Wheat.—The condition was 87 per cent normal and indicates a yield of 17.5 bushels per acre and a total production of 22,066,800 bushels, as compared with 24,634,000 last year, and 24,311,300 bushels, the average for the past ten years.

Spring Wheat.—The area of spring wheat is estimated at 16,275 acres; the condition, 86 per cent normal, indicating a production of 15 bushels to the acre, and a total production of 246,175 bushels.

Rye.—Eighty-nine per cent of normal condition and indicative of a yield of 16.1 bushels per acre and a total production of 3,319,000 bushels. The crop last year was estimated at 3,460,840 bushels and the average for the past ten years, 4,233,400 bushels.

Oats.—The area sown to oats this spring is estimated at 1,143,665 acres. (Continued on Third Page)

MAY AMEND STATE CONSTITUTION

Four Proposed Changes May go
Before Voters This Year.

DELAY SOLDIERS' BONUS

Is Discovered To Contain Clause Requiring Wait Until 1924 For Action
During Election.

(By Associated Press)
Harrisburg, June 25.—Four amendments to the Pennsylvania constitution may be submitted to the voters of the State at the general election this year, in the opinion of officials of the attorney general's department and the Department of State and Finance, who today began a study of amendments acted on by the 1921 and 1923 legislatures and the opinion of the State Supreme Court Saturday upholding the constitutionality of the Buckman law, passed this year to permit submission of amendments, in odd numbered as well as even numbered years.

Only one bond issue probably can be submitted, that providing $50,000,000 for highways. State officials had expected it would be possible to submit the highway bond issue and the $35,000,000 soldiers' bonus issue, but discovery of a specific clause in the soldiers' bonus bill providing for submission of this amendment in 1924 probably will prevent action by the voters this year.

Other amendments which it is believed can be submitted this year include that providing for the granting of railroad passes to clergymen, that exempting from taxation the property of veterans' organizations and that classifying county, municipality and school districts.

STOCK REPORT

U. S. Steel Drops 1 Point as Result of Pressure.

(By Associated Press)

New York, June 25.—Price changes were decidedly mixed at the opening of today's stock market. Selling pressure was directed against a number of the so-called pivotal stocks, United States Steel dropping 1 point. Heavy selling on the motor shares apparently based on the belief that the peak of motor car production and sales had been reached for this year turned the whole list heavy before noon. The attack on motors encouraged short selling of other popular shares, especially steels, equipments, sugars, tobaccos, oils and cans. Call money opened at 5 per cent.

CAR "DOES ITS STUFF"

Hits Curb, Bounces, and Bumps Gettysburg Machine.

An automobile accident in which no one was injured but in which two cars were damaged occurred on Saturday evening in Biglerville, when a light touring car in possession of Robert Tipton, of Hanover, crashed into the curb and on the rebound struck the car of Doyle R. Leathers, of Gettysburg, which was parked in front of the residence of Dr. M. T. Dill. The Tipton car was operated by a girl who lost control of the machine when another car approached. The touring car has the front axle broken, the spring and steering gears broken and the fender smashed.

The car owned by Mr. Leathers escaped with a bent fender. One of the girls in the machine was cut by flying glass. The damaged car was owned by a Hanover livery and had been rented by Robert Tipton.

IN REAR END COLLISION

An automobile accident which might have resulted seriously occurred on the Bondselsville-Biglerville concrete road when the sport car of Philip Crawford, of Gettysburg, a brakeman on the Gettysburg and Harrisburg railroad, crashed into the rear of the car owned by Roy E. Lawver, of Biglerville, and driven by his brother, Dale E. Lawver.

Conflicting stories of the mishap are told. It is said that Lawver was traveling north at a good rate of speed and suddenly slowed down to turn off the road to the right. He claims he signaled that he was about to turn. Crawford was following behind and before he could stop, he had crashed into the rear of the Lawver machine. Both rear wheels and the differential of the Lawver machine were broken and the bumper and radiator of the Crawford machine damaged. Neither of the men was injured.

HOSPITAL REPORT

George Snyder, of Littlestown, was admitted and Miss Ruth Miller, of Gettysburg R. 8, was discharged from the Warner Hospital over the weekend.

Saturday night's crowd, it is estimated, was twice as large as that of the best night preceding. Receipts on Saturday night amounted to $625. Total receipts for the four nights totalled $1950. The amount of money cleared will not be known for several days.

The crowd on Saturday night was almost riotous at times. Hundreds of men and women, boys and girls were served with ice cream and cake. In that section of the fire engine house where the "wheel of fortune" was being spun, the crowd was so dense that once inside it was difficult to get out. Those in charge of the wheel found it difficult to circulate among the people to sell chances.

"The festival and food sale was an unprecedented success," James B. Aumen, fire chief, said this morning. "We never dreamed of taking in almost $2000, and the showing is most gratifying to every member of the fire company. The committee in charge and I wish to thank everyone who stood by us in making the festival and food sale a success. They can be assured the fire company will stand by them in time of need."

The festival and food sale committee was composed of D. C. Stallsmith, chairman; M. E. Crouse, Leroy Fissel, A. J. Florence, Joseph Codori, James R. Aumen, William G. Weaver, Rufus Bushman, Percy Miller and George A. McClellan.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Western Maryland Brakeman Avoids Death by a Hair.

Fellow workmen on the Western Maryland railroad today told of how William C. Rollins, a brakeman, saved his life at Thomasville on Sunday by using presence of mind.

While working on a switch near that station, Rollins' foot was caught in the guard rail and he was unable to extricate the member. As spectators watched the rapid approach of a shifting engine with horror, Rollins reached around and seized the guard rail of the locomotive.

In this manner he was able to draw his foot free and pull himself up on the moving engine and to safety. He is in the York Hospital with severe injuries to his leg.

CAME HERE TO WED

Miss Fannie V. Holland, of Baltimore, and Charles J. Jinsa, also of Baltimore, were married Saturday by the Rev. Harry Daniels at the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church on Baltimore street.

60" ANNIVERSARY PROGRAM GIVEN

Drive For Expense of Bringing Troops is Under Way.

WILL PICK CAMP SITE

Activities to Start With Sunday, July 1, Getting Well Under Way With Maneuvers on Monday.

Gettysburg was one of the busiest towns in southeastern Pennsylvania today while plans for the Sixtieth anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg were being worked out by those in charge.

Announcement of a tentative program of events for July 1, 2, 3 and 4, and the selection of Clyde L. Bream, Carlisle street, as general supervisor for the Sixtieth anniversary celebration for the Boosters' Club, the Corporal Skelly post and the local camp, Sons of Veterans, were the outstanding developments today.

This afternoon, the drive for $1,000, which will be required to pay the town's share of the expense of having Federal troops here, got under way. Clyde Bream is acting as head of the drive for funds in addition to his other duties in connection with the celebration.

Major Courtland Nixon, commandant of the R. O. T. C. unit at Gettysburg College, was taken into consultation this morning on the selection of a suitable camp site. Every effort will be made to have the soldiers encamped near town.

When a site has been decided upon, an advance officer from Fort Myer, the headquarters of Battery B, 16th Field Artillery, will come to Gettysburg and assist in preparing it for the troops which are expected here Sunday, July 1, to remain twelve days.

July 1, according to the tentative program of events in connection with the Sixtieth anniversary, is registration day for the veterans of Blue and Gray who are expected to come here for the occasion. The registration book will be kept at the Corporal Skelly post room. Pastors of the various churches in Gettysburg will be asked to preach special sermons on that day.

At 8:30 Sunday evening, a sacred band concert will be given in Center Square by the Citizens' Band.

Monday is the "big day" of the Sixtieth anniversary. In the forenoon, the scene of activities will be Spangler's Spring and its vicinity. This was selected as a suitable place, since history records that troops from the Union and Confederate Armies mingled in one communion in drinking water from the historic Spring.

At 9 o'clock, Monday morning, there will be a band concert at the Spring. One hour later, a demonstration by

WILLIAM SMITH

William Smith, of Gardner, R. D., died Saturday morning at the Carlisle Hospital, it is learned here. Death was caused by dropsy and complications. He was aged 79 years, 4 months and 10 days.

His parents were the late William and Catherine Smith, of Cumberland county.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. E. J. Wise, Boiling Springs, and Mrs. William Weigle, Carlisle; two sons, Oscar Smith, of Boiling Springs, and Ray Smith, Gardner, R. D.; a sister, Mrs. Anna M. Kuhn, of Mt. Holly Springs; twenty-one grandchildren, and twenty-six great grandchildren.

Funeral services from the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. J. Wise, at Boiling Springs, Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Wagner; further services at Mt. Victory Church at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. David Marsh. Interment in the Mt. Victory cemetery.

FIRST BLOCK DANCE

The first block dance of the season will be held on Thursday evening of this week, under the auspices of the Albert J. Lentz American Legion post. The dance will be staged in front of the Gettysburg High school building on York street. George Hamme's orchestra has been secured to furnish music.

DIRECT TRAFFIC

State Police were called to direct traffic on the Lincoln Highway at Piney Mountain Inn Sunday afternoon, on account of the large number of cars parked on both sides of the road in the vicinity of the swimming pool. The State troopers were from the Chambersburg substation. The swimming pool was jammed with bathers throughout the day.

5 L. R. STEEL MEN APPEAR IN COURT

Sixth Official Scheduled To Be Brought Up For Indictment.

Five officials of the defunct L. R. Steel corporation, which had offices in Hanover and York and which disposed of many thousands of dollars worth of its stock among residents of this county, were arraigned before Justice Hinkley in the supreme court at Buffalo, New York, last week when grand jury indictments against six former officers and directors were returned after a week of investigation conducted before the jury by District Attorney Guy B. Moore and Deputy Attorney General Hugh Reilly.

Plead Not Guilty

All five of the defendants arraigned pleaded not guilty and were admitted to bail. Two of the indictments were secret.

The defendant named in one of them appeared in court and was arraigned with those in the four open indictments. The sixth official indicted has not yet been before the court. It was reported that he would probably appear for arraignment today. One no-bill was returned.

Those Indicted

Indicted and arraigned Friday were: Walter M. Wilkins, former general counsel for the Steel companies and head of the L. R. Steel corporation when it was thrown into bankruptcy on April 30, shortly after the sudden death of Leonard R. Steel on a train near Toledo, charged with receiving commissions in violation of a section of the state corporation laws relative to stock sales.

Paul F. Chase, former head of the L. R. Steel Service corporation, indicted on four counts of grand larceny in connection with the sale of Steel stock.

Arthur J. Todd, former superintendent of branches of the L. R. Steel Service corporation, indicted on three counts of grand larceny in connection with the sale of Steel stocks.

James R. Nicholson, former treasurer of L. R. Steel Inc., and director of several of the companies, charged with receiving commissions in violation of the corporation laws.

Francis J. Rohr, former president of the Steel Realty Development company, appeared in court and pleaded not guilty to accepting commissions in violation of the law.

Held In Jail

Chase and Todd were held in $7,500 bail each. Wilkins, Nicholson and Rohr were admitted to $1,000 bail.

Gerald K. Rudolph, former director of L. R. Steel publicity, and a director of the Mary Lincoln Candy Shops, who was before the grand jury during the investigation, was voted a no-bill. Mr. Rudolph said he was not connected with the Steel enterprises at the time of the crash.

Owing to the proximity of the summer recess it was indicated that none of the defendants would be brought to trial before the fall term of the court.

JAMES McKENNA DIES

James McKenna, a native of Ireland, died at the county home Sunday, aged 79 years. Mr. McKenna came to the United States from Ireland when a boy and settled in the vicinity of New Chester. He lived in Straban township until six years ago when he went to live at the county home. Funeral services were held this afternoon, conducted by the Rev. Father Mark E. Stock. Interment in the Catholic Cemetery here.

SIREN GETS WORKOUT

The Gettysburg fire company's new electrical siren sounded its first fire alarm Sunday morning when the company was called out to extinguish a chimney fire at the home of Andrew Timbers, colored, South Washington street. The blaze was soon under control, with the use of hand extinguishers. The damage was slight.

TO GET LINE ON WHEAT

R. E. Underwood, Adams county farm agent, today issued a call for all farmers having Pennsylvania-44 wheat to be used for seed purposes to report to him at once. According to Agent Underwood approximately 166 acres in Adams county are planted in the seed variety.

RAIN STOPS PARTY

Because of the storm Saturday evening, it was necessary to postpone the straw ride from St. Mary's Church in Fairfield to the Pecher home. The event is scheduled to take place this evening.

GOT THE LICENSE

A marriage license was issued this morning by J. Robert Hartman, clerk of the courts, to James William Smith, of Forbes, Road, and Miss Rosie Myrtle Campbell, of Latrobe, this State.

PITTSBURGH TO MARK HIGHWAY

As a Result of Publicity Action Is Now Coming To A Head.

TWO ROUTES PROPOSED

Both May Be Marked as Lincoln Highway, Allowing Motorists to Take Their Choice, One is Through City.

As the result of publicity given Pittsburgh's failure to plainly mark the route of the Lincoln Highway within the city limits, the Pittsburgh City Council, Director C. A. Rook, of the Department of Public Safety, and representatives of the Pennsylvania Lincoln Highway Association will meet in the "smoky city" on Tuesday to settle upon a route for the Highway through the city.

The Public Safety Committee of the Pittsburgh Council last week requested Director Rook to prepare legislation to be introduced in Council today, designating the route of the Lincoln Highway through Pittsburgh.

The Boulevard of the Allies has been proposed by the highway association as part of a new route, but some objection is raised to this and it was argued by a Pittsburgh City Councilman recently that a hearing should be granted at which the automobile dealers and others affected by the proposed change of route could present their views.

Howard C. Mittinger, manager of Hoffman's Hotel here, and secretary-treasurer of the Pennsylvania Lincoln Highway Association, will not be able to attend the meeting in Pittsburgh on Tuesday because of the press of business now in connection with the Boosters' Club's participation in the celebration of the Sixtieth anniversary next week. Mr. Mittinger is secretary of the Club.

The Boulevard of the Allies route, however, is around the downtown business section. Supporters of having this route marked as the Lincoln Highway say it would reduce traffic congestion in the downtown business section. Opponents declare that to remove the Highway from the business section would be a disaster.

SEE CONSPIRACY IN SPRING CROPS

Conditions Are Result of Late Spring And Dry Weather.

WINTER GRAINS POOR

Drought Last Fall Blamed For Poor State of Grass and Grain Crops.

It's weather this spring, tardiness and the has continued since the case of winter the poor start received the principal factors the subnormal conditions and grain crops, in this the bureau of statistics, Jania Department of Agriculture.

Winter wheat, spring wheat, rye and oats all indicate a condition that is ten or more per cent below normal for this season of the year. Hay prospects are even lower, being given as only 84 per cent of normal. The indications point to a drop in the total production and average acre yields of the respective crops as compared with the estimated production in 1922.

The report of the bureau of statistics is as follows:

Winter Wheat.—The condition was 87 per cent normal and indicates a yield of 17.5 bushels per acre and a total production of 22,066,800 bushels as compared with 24,634,000 last year, and 24,311,300 bushels, the average for the past ten years.

Spring Wheat.—The area of spring wheat is estimated at 16,275 acres; the condition, 86 per cent normal, indicating a production of 15 bushels to the acre, and a total production of 246,175 bushels.

Rye.—Eighty-nine per cent of normal condition and indicative of a yield of 16.1 bushels per acre and a total production of 3,319,000 bushels. The crop last year was estimated at 3,660,840 bushels and the average for the past ten years, 4,233,400 bushels.

Oats.—The area sown to oats this spring is estimated at 1,143,665 acres

MAY AMEND STATE CONSTITUTION

Four Proposed Changes May go Before Voters This Year.

DELAY SOLDIERS' BONUS

Is Discovered To Contain Clause Requiring Wait Until 1924 For Action During Election.

(By Associated Press)

Harrisburg, June 25.—Four amendments to the Pennsylvania constitution may be submitted to the voters of the State at the general election this year, in the opinion of officials of the attorney general's department and the Department of State and Finance, who today began a study of amendments acted on by the 1921 and 1923 legislatures and the opinion of the State Supreme Court Saturday upholding the constitutionality of the Buckman law, passed this year to permit submission of amendments in odd numbered as well as even numbered years.

Only one bond issue probably can be submitted, that providing $50,000,000 for highways. State officials had expected it would be possible to submit the highway bond issue and the $35,000,000 soldiers' bonus issue, but discovery of a specific clause in the soldiers' bonus bill providing for submission of this amendment in 1924 probably will prevent action by the voters this year.

Other amendments which it is believed can be submitted this year include that providing for the granting of railroad passes to clergymen, that exempting from taxation the property of veterans' organizations and that classifying county, municipal and school districts.

STOCK REPORT

U. S. Steel Drops 1 Point as Result of Pressure.

(By Associated Press)

New York, June 25.—Price changes were decidedly mixed at the opening of today's stock market. Selling pressure was directed against a number of the so-called pivotal stocks, United States Steel dropping 1 point. Heavy selling on the motor shares apparently based on the belief that the peak of motor car production and sales had been reached for this year turned the whole list heavy before noon. The attack on motors encouraged short selling of other popular shares, especially steels, equipments, sugars, tobaccos, oils and cans. Call money opened at 5 per cent.

CAR "DOES ITS STUFF"

Hits Curb, Bounces, and Bumps Gettysburg Machine.

An automobile accident in which no one was injured but in which two cars were damaged occurred on Saturday evening in Biglerville, when a light touring car in possession of Robert Tipton, of Hanover, crashed into the curb and on the rebound struck the car of Doyle R. Leathers, of Gettysburg, which was parked in front of the residence of Dr. M. T. Dill. The Tipton car was operated by a girl who lost control of the machine when another car approached. The touring car has the front axle broken, the spring and steering gears broken and the fender smashed.

The car owned by Mr. Leathers escaped with a bent fender. One of the girls in the machine was cut by flying glass. The damaged car was owned by a Hanover livery and had been rented by Robert Tipton.

IN REAR END COLLISION

An automobile accident which might have resulted seriously occurred on the Pottsville-Biglerville concrete road when the sport car of Philip Crawford, of Gettysburg and Harrisburg railroad, crashed into the rear of the car owned by Roy E. Lawver, of Biglerville, and driven by his brother, Dale E. Lawver.

Conflicting stories of the mishap are told. It is said that Lawver was traveling north at a good rate of speed and suddenly slowed down to turn off the road to the right. He claims he signaled that he was about to turn. Crawford was following behind and before he could stop, he had crashed into the rear of the Lawver machine. Both rear wheels and the differential of the Lawver machine were broken and the bumper and radiator of the Crawford machine damaged. Neither of the men was injured.

BURMA SHANS GIVE WILD NIGHT DANCE

Twenty-Four Tribes Participate in Famous Animal And Bird Pageant.

Taunggyi, Burma, June 25.—The recent inauguration of the Federated Shan states was marked by a remarkable series of exhibition dances. These included tribal dances in which twenty-four of the hill tribes of Burma participated, as well as the famous animal and bird dances of the Shans.

The entertainment took place in a specially built area with more than 5000 spectators in attendance. Brilliant and unusual lighting was a feature of the occasion. The thoroughfares leading to the arena were lined with huge lamps in the shape of lotus blossoms. The governor, Sir Harecourt Butler, was escorted to his place by 200 torchbearers, carrying torches ten feet long and one foot thick, made of bamboo and pine chips.

In the opening parade, some of the torches used were as much as fifty feet in height and required fifty or sixty men to carry them. Each torch was followed by several musicians, who beat tom-toms and played other weird instruments.

Of the tribal dances, those of the Padaungs proved the most popular. The Padaungs are noted for the enormous rings they wear. The brass rings worn about the neck, arms and legs of one woman often weigh over fifty pounds. Those of the neck, amounting to about fifteen pounds, are considered the most important. A girl starts wearing such rings from childhood; as the neck stretches, additional rings are added. The woman who has the longest neck is considered the most beautiful and the most to be desired as a wife.

The Shans in their dances disguised themselves as animals and birds. Buffalo, elephants, tigers, bears and cocks were among those represented. A small dog which happened to stray into the arena was so frightened by one of the tigers that he hid his tail between his legs and awaited in terror the end which he thought was about to come.

The Shan states, rich in agricultural and mineral products, are in the northeastern part of Burma.

HARD LUCK STILL PURSUES CIRCUS

Right Eye Of Clown Nearly Burned Out By Explosion.

The jinx still pursues the Gentry-Patterson Circus, which gave two performances here on June 14.

Within a few days last week, one lion, imported from the scorching tropics of Africa, died from the effects of hot weather; two elephants engaged in mortal combat over possession of peanuts thrown them by spectators, and a so-called tame monkey bit the hand of a small boy. The hand of "hard luck" struck hardest, Saturday night, while the show was giving a performance at Pottstown.

Thousands of persons, gathered to witness the circus, roared with laughter when a huge "bouquet" handed to a clown, Howard Walsh, of Bloomington, Illinois, exploded.

The clown fell to the ground, and when he was dragged out the crowd laughed uproariously. This part of the performance is remembered by everyone who saw the show here.

At a hospital at Pottstown, it was learned that Walsh's right eye was nearly burned out by the explosion. He is in a serious condition, according to reports.

Walsh had just finished his act, accompanied by the clown who was handed the bouquet. He was supposed to be a light powder. So, however, a loud explosion, which, however, made no out spectators to think it the act.

LONDON BREAK UP OF U. S.

Newspapers Anxious Lest Ill Feeling Arise Over Ship Liquor Problem.

(By Associated Press) London, June 25.—In several editorial articles in London newspapers today there is a decided note of anxiety lest the controversy over the seizure of liquor on British vessels at New York lead to serious ill feeling between Great Britain and the United States. These newspapers expressed the hope that people here will refrain from intemperate criticism of what is held to be purely a legal question.

ENGINEER DIES

Plunged Over Bank Into River With Engine.

(By Associated Press) Scranton, June 25.—James Burke, engineer on the flyer of the Central Railroad, of New Jersey, which plunged into the Lackawanna river Sunday, died today in a hospital here. Burke was at the throttle of the flyer last week when it ran into a passenger train at Allentown. He escaped injury at that time by jumping from the cab of his engine. In the wreck yesterday Burke, pinned in the cab of his engine, rolled down a 40-foot bank.

3 BANDITS KILL BOWERY JEWELER

Make Good Their Escape In Waiting Automobile Afterward.

VICTIM FOUGHT THEM

Fleeing; Gunmen Fire Into Crowd When Pursued by Several Persons. Cop Giving Chase Loses Trail.

New York, June 25.—Three bandits escaped in an automobile, pursued through the busiest section of the East Side by a policeman in a commandeered machine, after they had shot and killed Nathan Hebbald, a jeweler, in an effort to steal a tray of diamond rings from his store at the corner of the Bowery and Kenmare street.

Hebbald, who put up a fight, was shot by each of the three men and fell dead on the floor. The men dashed in their big black machine which stood at the curb and fled.

Except for a good description of the men, police have little to work on. There was no license plate on the automobile.

Following the shooting a crowd of more than 15,000 persons gathered in the neighborhood, while police reserves attempted to hold them back.

When several youths chased the automobile through Kenmare street, the bandits, standing on the running board, deliberately fired several shots at them. Many persons narrowly escaped being struck and women, and children ran panic-stricken into stores and doorways.

Hebbald, who was 45 years old, owned the store. He and his clerk only one hour before had opened the doors in expectation of a visit of a salesman for a wholesale house, who was to purchase $50,000 worth of jewelry. The safe had not yet been opened.

The three youths, all well dressed, came in and, saying they were in a hurry, wanted to buy a diamond ring. David Weinstein, the clerk, brought out a tray of diamond jewelry and immediately he was told to throw up his hands.

Hebbald, who was in a rear room, rushed into the store and struck the tallest of the men a blow on the jaw. The man fell back, and before Hebbald had a chance to renew his attack the man shouted to his two pals: "Get him!"

A moment later the three bandits backed toward the door and all three shot Hebbald. One bullet passed through his neck, another lodged in his brain and a third in his left shoulder. He fell to the floor dead. Weinstein stood back of the counter with his hands in the air.

The three bandits then ran to the car standing at the curb, which was operated by a fourth bandit.

NEWS NOTES FROM TRINITY CHURCH

Annual Outing of Church at Caledonia Attracting Interest.

(Contributed) In spite of the intense heat Trinity enjoyed a profitable Sunday. About 225 members of the church partook of the Holy Communion. The minister administered communion privately to a dozen members unable to attend the church. In his talk to the children on the theme, "Press On," the minister urged to children to press on in good physical growth, in the getting of wisdom and in becoming more Christ like. "And Jesus grew in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man." The music by the choir, in organ and evening, was greatly appreciated. One new member was received.

Preparations are under way for the annual outing at Caledonia July 12. Various committees have been appointed by the chairman of the general committee. The women are making inquiries about "rooster chase." Every family in the church is asked to plan to take in this year's outing. The minister was called to the hospital Monday morning to baptize a sick child, George Edwin Snyder. The parents were present.

The training for leadership class will discontinue during July and August.

PRECEDENT GIVEN FOR SHIP RUM BAN

Dr. C. T. Wilson Cites British Act Applying To U. S. Vessels.

Ocean Grove, N. J., June 25.—Prohibition must be enforced on all ships in United States harbors, the Rev. Clarence True Wilson, of Washington, told several thousand people in the Ocean Grove Auditorium Sunday night.

Bishop Joseph F. Berry and Methodist leaders from New Jersey and Pennsylvania attended the service.

"When Great Britain freed her slaves," said Doctor Wilson, who is national secretary of the board of temperance, "prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church," she decreed that all her territory and the decks of her ships were free ground. When America goes prohibition, she carries her ships with her. When Great Britain passed the Plimsoll act, making her merchant marine load according to law, she refused to allow any American vessel to land unless loaded in accordance with the act.

"We have this precedent for saying that no American ships under the stars and stripes, a prohibition banner, shall carry booze, and to protect our own shipping from unfair competition, we should take the ground that no foreign ship shall come into any American harbor exercising privileges or carrying a cargo which it is unlawful for an American ship to carry."

"We have the right to clear the seas off our shores of rum-running ships that are there to connive with our bootleggers in violating American law, and we will do it sooner or later. 'Uncle Sam' will not sit like the fat, fat man at the show, fanning himself, while bootleggers just out of reach of his arm violate the law."

COMMENTS ON WARD LEAGUE

The Ward League And Third Ward Especially Are Mentioned.

To the Editor of the Times.

Why is it that the ward league this year is getting along about half. So far very little interest has been shown by the fans, and sad to relate a large number of the players and most especially those of Third Ward are taking an indifferent attitude. The writer would like to know if there is anything else beside baseball that would provide entertainment for the citizens of Gettysburg during the summer months, and keep the younger men in better physical trim. Is our community dead or not or is it just dying slowly? We started this baseball business in all good faith and it seems now that we have lost the Good Faith. If any Third Ward player or used to be player can give a good reason why he has been staying away from the playground when a game is called for his ward or a practice, and why, if he doesn't intend to play, he doesn't turn in his uniform to the manager so that some other player can have the benefit of it, he certainly will be entitled to first prize as the best rapid-fire tongue-wagger in town. I am just a follower of the sport and Third Ward fan who has his own ideas about the game. Possibly my ideals are too radical, but if we don't take advantage of the clear days now to play off the canceled games they'll pile up by the end of the season and more than likely never be played. I would very much like to see some action taken by those in charge of the league, and again let me say you Third Ward Swindlers if you don't want to play at least turn in your uniform and then hang around the corners all you like if you get any fun out of that. Replies from other league fans are expected.

Thank You,

Family Escapes Injury When Vehicle Is Demolished.

An automobile driven by A. F. Roubush, of York Springs, struck and demolished a spring wagon, in which J. A. Heffner, his wife, and two children, of near Flay's Church, were returning home from Harrisburg market, late Saturday night on the Gettysburg highway a mile west of Shepherdstown.

The car caught the rear wheel of the wagon and threw both horse and vehicle in the ditch on the side of the road, completely demolishing the wagon and slightly injuring the horse. The occupants of the wagon escaped with a few minor cuts and bruises. They were taken to their home by a passing motorist.

SHOPMEN ARE ELECTED

Railroad Officials Say Recent Rebuke Is Ignored.

(By Associated Press) Chicago, June 25.—Ignoring the recent rebuke of the United States Railroad Labor Board directed against the Pennsylvania railroad because of the company's defiance of one of the board's decisions, the Northwestern region of the road has completed election of railroad representatives of the shopmen under the road's employee representation plan, railroad officials announced today.

It was over the manner of electing shop representatives that the road and board clashed.

LEVIATHAN GETS A WILD WELCOME

Arrives At New York Pier—Champion Of World's Marine.

BROKE ALL SPEED MARKS

End of Trial Trip Lauded With Cheers, Whistles and Bells. Results Exceeded Most Optimistic Hopes.

New York, June 25.—Champion of the world's marine, the Leviathan entered New York harbor Sunday morning at the end of her triumphant trial trip, and received a riotous welcome.

Hundreds of small craft and a score of larger vessels hovering on this side of the gray bank that had hid her rushed madly to come along side and their engines raced to keep up with her majestic stride to the foot of West Forty-sixth street, where forty tugs, very businesslike, took charge of her.

Sirens kept up a steady screech. Whistles tried to burst their throats. Bells rang. Factories along the shore took up the welcome. Thousands of rowboats and canoes, filled with cheering men and women, dared the wash of her waves to pay tribute. The shore for miles was lined with well-wishers.

The Leviathan's start from Boston was unassuming—her return was an event. History was made.

In the days of old, when she was the Vaterland sailing under the German double eagle, she found a berth on these shores at Hoboken. As the Leviathan, a seized enemy's ship, used to transport American soldiers, she docked at Hoboken.

Sunday was its first visit to this side of the Hudson river. The city dock at the foot of West Forty-sixth street just accommodated it. It stretched its length from end to end of the huge pier. Its three funnels loomed above the buildings.

The ovation at the pier was almost hysterical. Friends and relatives of the 318 passengers on board, guests of Albert D. Lasker, chairman of the shipping board, and of Captain Herbert Hartley, the Leviathan's new commander, gathered in large numbers, and as the guests, host and officers came ashore a reception was tendered them, the crowd unable to get on the dock keeping up a constant cheering.

It was announced that in every department the vessel exceeded the most optimistic hopes.

Speed, one of the essential things to its success, was attained. In a dash of twenty-four hour duration and over a stretch of 687 nautical miles it maintained a speed of 27.48 knots an hour. For six hours of that time it sustained an average of twenty-eight knots.

Yet, from Captain Herbert Hartley down to the least of the ship's crew, it is contended that the Leviathan did not reach her maximum. Under pressure, it is held, she could easily do thirty knots steadily for forty-eight hours.

Saturday night was given over to celebrating the trip and paying honor to Albert D. Lasker, chairman of the shipping board, the host. Using the wireless, Mr. Lasker sent a message to President Harding telling him of the near end of the voyage that started from Boston, and he hoped it would be some "return" to the president for his "constant interest and enthusiasm for American interests at sea."

BURMA SHANS GIVE WILD NIGHT DANCE

Twenty-Four Tribes Participate in Famous Animal And Bird Pageant.

Taunggyi, Burma, June 25.—The recent inauguration of the Federated Shan states was marked by a remarkable series of exhibition dances. These included tribal dances in which twenty-four of the hill tribes of Burma participated, as well as the famous animal and bird dances of the Shans.

The entertainment took place in a specially built area with more than 5000 spectators in attendance. Brilliant and unusual lighting was a feature of the occasion. The thoroughfares leading to the arena were lined with huge lamps in the shape of lotus blossoms. The governor, Sir Harcourt Butler, was escorted to his place by 200 torchbearers, carrying torches ten feet long and one foot thick, made of bamboo and pine chips.

In the opening parade, some of the torches used were as much as fifty feet in height and required fifty or sixty men to carry them. Each torch was followed by several musicians, who beat tom-toms and played other weird instruments.

Of the tribal dances, those of the Padaungs proved the most popular. The Padaungs are noted for the enormous rings they wear. The brass rings worn about the neck, arms and legs of one woman often weigh over fifty pounds. Those of the neck, amounting to about fifteen pounds, are considered the most important. A girl starts wearing such rings from childhood; as the neck stretches, additional rings are added. The woman who has the longest neck is considered the most beautiful and the most to be desired as a wife.

The Shans in their dances disguised themselves as animals and birds. Buffalo, elephants, tigers, bears and cocks were among those represented. A small dog which happened to stray into the arena was so frightened by one of the tigers that he hid his tail between his legs and awaited in terror the end which he thought was about to come.

The Shan states, rich in agricultural and mineral products, are in the northeastern part of Burma.

HARD LUCK STILL PURSUES CIRCUS

Right Eye Of Clown Nearly Burned Out By Explosion.

The jinx still pursues the Gentry-Patterson Circus, which gave two performances here on June 14.

Within a few days last week, one lion, imported from the scorching tropics of Africa, died from the effects of hot weather; two elephants engaged in mortal combat over possession of peanuts thrown them by spectators, and a so-called tame monkey bit the hand of a small boy. The hand of "hard luck" struck hardest, Saturday night, while the show was giving a performance at Pottstown.

Thousands of persons, gathered to witness the circus, roared with laughter when a huge "bouquet" handed to a clown, Howard Walsh, of Bloomington, Illinois, exploded.

The clown fell to the ground, and when he was dragged out the crowd laughed uproariously. This part of the performance is remembered by everyone who saw the show here.

At a hospital at Pottstown, it was learned that Walsh's right eye was nearly burned out by the explosion. He is in a serious condition, according to reports.

Walsh had just finished his performance when he was handed the bouquet. He was supposed to be lighting powder. So a mistake, however, a loud explosion. Walsh, however, made no outcry and spectators to think it the act.

LONDON BREAK WITH U.S.

Newspapers Anxious Lest Ill Feeling Arise Over Ship Liquor Problem.

(By Associated Press) London, June 25.—In several editorial articles in London newspapers today there is a decided note of anxiety lest the controversy over the seizure of liquor on British vessels at New York lead to serious ill feeling between Great Britain and the United States. These newspapers expressed the hope that people here will refrain from intemperate criticism of what is held to be purely a legal question.

ENGINEER DIES

Plunged Over Bank Into River With Engine.

(By Associated Press) Scranton, June 25.—James Burke, engineer on the flyer of the Central Railroad, of New Jersey, which plunged into the Lackawanna river Sunday, died today in a hospital here. Burke was at the throttle of the flyer last week when it ran into a passenger train at Allentown. He escaped injury at that time by jumping from the cab of his engine. In the wreck yesterday Burke, pinned in the cab of his engine, rolled down a 40-foot bank.

3 BANDITS KILL BOWERY JEWELER

Make Good Their Escape In Waiting Automobile Afterward.

VICTIM FOUGHT THEM

Fleeing Gunmen Fire Into Crowd When Pursued by Several Persons. Cop Giving Chase Loses Trail.

New York, June 25.—Three bandits escaped in an automobile, pursued through the busiest section of the East Side by a policeman in a commandeered machine, after they had shot and killed Nathan Hebbald, a jeweler, in an effort to steal a tray of diamond rings from his store at the corner of the Bowery and Kenmare street.

Hebbald, who put up a fight, was shot by each of the three men and fell dead on the floor. The men dashed in their big black machine which stood at the curb and fled.

Except for a good description of the men, police have little to work on. There was no license plate on the automobile.

Following the shooting a crowd of more than 15,000 persons gathered in the neighborhood, while police reserves attempted to hold them back.

When several youths chased the automobile through Kenmare street, the bandits, standing on the running board, deliberately fired several shots at them. Many persons narrowly escaped being struck and women and children ran panic-stricken into stores and doorways.

Hebbald, who was 45 years old, owned the store. He and his clerk only one hour before had opened the doors in expectation of a visit of a salesman for a wholesale house, who was to purchase $50,000 worth of jewelry. The safe had not yet been opened.

The three youths, all well dressed, came in and, saying they were in a hurry, wanted to buy a diamond ring. David Weinstein, the clerk, brought out a tray of diamond jewelry and immediately he was told to throw up his hands.

Hebbald, who was in a rear room, rushed into the store and struck the tallest of the men a blow on the jaw. The man fell back, and before Hebbald had a chance to renew his attack the man shouted to his two pals:

"Get him!" A moment later the three bandits backed toward the door and all three shot Hebbald. One bullet passed through his neck, another lodged in his brain and a third in his left shoulder. He fell to the floor dead. Weinstein stood back of the counter with his hands in the air.

The three bandits then ran to the car standing at the curb, which was operated by a fourth bandit.

NEWS NOTES FROM TRINITY CHURCH

Annual Outing of Church at Caledonia Attracting Interest.

(Contributed) In spite of the intense heat Trinity enjoyed a profitable Sunday. About 225 members of the church partook of the Holy Communion. The minister administered communion privately to a dozen members unable to attend the church. In his talk to the children on the theme, "Press On," the minister urged to children to press on in good physical growth, in the getting of wisdom and in becoming more Christ like. "And Jesus grew in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man." The music by the choir, morning and evening, was greatly appreciated. One new member was received.

Preparations are under way for the annual outing at Caledonia July 12. Various committees have been appointed by the chairman of the general committee. The women are making inquiries about that "rooster chase." Every family in the church is asked to plan to take in this year's outing.

The minister was called to the hospital Monday morning to baptize a sick child, George Edwin Snyder. The parents were present.

The training for leadership class will discontinue during July and August.

PRECEDENT GIVEN FOR SHIP RUM BAN

Dr. C. T. Wilson Cites British Act Applying To U. S. Vessels.

Ocean Grove, N. J., June 25.—Prohibition must be enforced on all ships in United States harbors, the Rev. Clarence True Wilson, of Washington, told several thousand people in the Ocean Grove Auditorium Sunday night.

Bishop Joseph F. Berry and Methodist leaders from New Jersey and Pennsylvania attended the service.

"When Great Britain freed her slaves," said Doctor Wilson, who is national secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, "she decreed that all her territory and the decks of her ships were free ground. When America goes prohibition, she carries her ships with her. When Great Britain passed the Plimsoll act, making her merchant marine load according to law, she refused to allow any American vessel to land unless loaded in accordance with the act.

"We have this precedent for saying that no American ships under the stars and stripes, a prohibition banner, shall carry booze, and to protect our own shipping from unfair competition, we should take the ground that no foreign ship shall come into any American harbor exercising privileges or carrying a cargo which it is unlawful for an American ship to carry.

"We have the right to clear the seas off our shores of rum-running ships that are there to connive with our bootleggers in violating American law, and we will do it sooner or later.

"Uncle Sam will not sit like the fat man at the show, fanning himself, while bootleggers just out of reach of his arm violate the law."

COMMENTS ON WARD LEAGUE

The Ward League And Third Ward Especially Are Mentioned.

To the Editor of the Times.

Why is it that the ward league this year is getting along about half. So far very little interest has been shown by the fans, and sad to relate a large number of the players and most especially those of Third Ward are taking an indifferent attitude. The writer would like to know if there is anything else beside baseball that would provide entertainment for the citizens of Gettysburg during the summer months, and keep the young men in better physical trim. Is our community dead or not or is it just dying slowly? We started this baseball business in all good faith and it seems now that we have lost the Good Faith. If any Third Ward player or used to be player can give a good reason why he has been staying away from the playground when a game is called for his ward or a practice, and why, if he doesn't intend to play, he doesn't turn in his uniform to the manager so that some other player can have the benefit of it, he certainly will be entitled to first prize as the best rapid-fire tongue-wagger in town. I am just a follower of the sport and Third Ward fan who has his own ideas about the game. Possibly my ideals are too radical, but if we don't take advantage of the clear days now to play off the canceled games they'll pile up by the end of the season and more than likely never be played. I would very much like to see some action taken by those in charge of the league, and again let me say you Third Ward Swindlers if you don't want to play at least turn in your uniform and then hang around the corners all you like if you get any fun out of that. Replies from other league fans are expected.

Last year the production estimate was 39,473,300 bushels, and the average for ten years, 37,356,000 bushels.

Barley.—Barley, like spring wheat, is not grown to a great extent in Pennsylvania. The area seeded this spring is estimated at 11,760 acres, 96 per cent of last year's acreage. The condition is estimated at 92 per cent and forecasts an average yield of 25.7 bushels per acre, and a total production of 302,200 bushels. Total production last year, 301,500 bushels, and the annual average for ten years, 286,650 bushels.

Hay.—The prospect for hay was estimated at 84 per cent and is indicative of a yield of 1.34 tons per acre, compared with 1.57 tons last year and 1.35 tons, the ten-year average.

It appears that there are approximately 470,535 tons of hay in the hands of the farmers at the present time, one-tenth of the total 1922 crop. At the same time last year, the amount on hand was only 276,625 tons, the increase this year being largely due to the big crop harvested in 1922.

Vacant Farms.—Reports received from 705 townships in Pennsylvania show that there are 3,212 unoccupied farms in these townships. Assuming that the other 662 townships have as many, pro rata, a reasonable assumption, the whole number of vacant farms in the State is, then, approximately 6,977, compared with 3,820 one year ago, and 4,100, two years ago.

ness section would result in millions of dollars being lost by business concerns along the route.

Director Rook, in a report to Council, recommended the adoption of the Boulevard of the Allies as the main route, to be designated with red, white and blue signs, the present route along Bigelow and Baum boulevards being marked with red, white and red signs and classed as an alternative route. The Boulevard of the Allies would thus become the Lincoln highway route through the city and would join the other route on Penn avenue near the city line.

Several weeks ago the failure of Pittsburgh to properly mark the Lincoln Highway within its limits was brought to the attention of local hotelmen and business men by the fact that traffic was being diverted away from the Lincoln Highway and to the National Highway. The Times took up the fight to have the streets of Pittsburgh plainly marked for the Lincoln Highway and it is believed that it is directly the result of the spotlight being thrown on conditions in the West Pennsylvania city that action has come to a head.

The Exaltation of Christ

By REV. GEORGE E. GUILLE

Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT.—When He had by Himself purged our sins, He sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on High.—Heb. 1:3.

Hebrews is the epistle of the opened heavens. It discloses to us the One Person who fills those heavens with His glory, the Person who waits to fill with that glory the heart that is fully opened to Him. Its object is to bring the hearts of His own into occupation with Himself. Its most powerful appeal is that reiterated, "Consider him."

On the day of Pentecost Peter said: "This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we are witnesses. Therefore being at the right hand of God exalted... he hath shed forth this." When Stephen was dying "he looked up steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God." When Saul of Tarsus was lying on his face in the Damascus road, a voice from heaven said: "I am Jesus." The revelation is progressive: Peter said: "He is there"; Stephen saw Him there; Saul heard Him speak from there.

In every instance that the Scripture speaks of the exaltation of Christ, it calls Him by His human name: Jesus. And thus is emphasized what is too often lost sight of, the fact that He is exalted in His humanity. There is a Man in heaven! A Man in physical body of flesh and bones! "This same Jesus" is at the right hand of God in the very body that was nailed to a cross for our sins.

The opening statement of the epistle contains a cluster of glories that thrills the soul included in the "our" of the text. The value to us of that revelation of His glories is enhanced by the closing declaration which tells us how He got there and reveals the rich personal interest in the heavens that every believing sinner has: "When he had by himself purged our sins, he sat down." When He had done this, but not until then! When He had settled forever the question of sin: when He had purged the last stain so that no trace remained upon the believer.

I look at the cross where He hung nailed, but He is not there. A dead man on a cross is no symbol of our holy Christianity! I look into the tomb where He lay beneath the awful load of my sins and, behold, it is empty. I look behind Him forever in defeat! I look up to heaven and there I see Him without my sins, and the Lord's song begins in my soul! It was my sins that nailed Him to the cross, and because He died for me, and in that death effaced all my guilt, God has exalted Him at His own right hand.

"He sat down." Sat down because His work was done, as one who rests from toil. His session there in the heavens is the eternal vindication of that cry of triumph that from the cross has echoed round the world: "It is finished!" Finished, so that nothing remains to be done! Finished, because sin is purged and put away! Finished according to all the types and shadows of the law! Finished precisely as all Scripture had foretold! Finished, the judgment endured, and the believer delivered from it! He has done what no priest of old would have dared; He has gone into the inner sanctuary and taken a seat at God's right hand of power. "Every priest standeth daily ministering and offering oftentimes the same sacrifices, which can never take away sins," states chapter 10 of this epistle. The priest stood, for the tabernacle, and the temple after it, contained no article of furniture upon which one could sit. He stood because his work was never done. Day after day, the offering on the brazen altar, morning and evening the lamps trimmed and burning on the golden lampstand—sacrifices that could never take away sins. "But this man," it is added, "after He had offered one sacrifice for sins forever, sat down on the right hand of God."

O soul, look up and see Him there, and remember how He reached that place. "We behold him who hath been made a little lower than the angels, even Jesus, because of the suffering of death crowned with glory and honor" (Heb. 2:9 R. V.). Crowned with glory and honor because of that death into which He went for our sins. Behold Him there and make no more vain attempts to add to His finished work. It is this that saves, not something that you must do but the work already done for you. "Doing or done?" Here is the essential difference between Christianity and all of man's religion, of whatever name. To spell the latter requires but two letters: "Do." For Christianity, four letters are required: "D-O-N-E!" If you tried a thousand years you could add nothing to this finished work. You would only mar it and dim the glory belonging to Christ alone. The gospel is the proclamation of a finished work which God invites poor sin-laden men to accept and to rest in with Himself forever. This is the glad story our God so joys to tell! O weary soul, believe it and rest and live!

The Secret Adversary by Agatha Christie

"When I came to Mrs. Vandemeyer was sweet as honey to me. She'd had her orders, I guess."

"By and by she went out of the room altogether. I was suspicious still, and lay quite quiet for some time. In the end, however, I got up and walked round the room, examining it. I thought that even if anyone was watching me from somewhere, it would seem natural enough under the circumstances. It was a squalid, dirty place. There were no windows, which seemed queer. I guessed the door would be locked, but I didn't try it. There were some battered old pictures on the walls, representing scenes from Faust."

Jane's two listeners gave a simultaneous "Ah!" The girl nodded. "Yes—it was the place in Soho where Mr. Beresford was imprisoned. Of course, at the time I didn't even know if I was in London. One thing was worrying me dreadfully, but my heart gave a great throb of relief when I saw my ulster lying carelessly over the back of the chair. And the magazine was still rolled up in the pocket!"

"I lay down on the bed again, and by and by Mrs. Vandemeyer brought me some supper."

"That was an awful night. I'd made my plan whilst I was waiting for her. The papers were safe so far, but I couldn't take the risk of leaving them there any longer. They might throw that magazine away any minute. I lay awake waiting until I judged it must be about two o'clock in the morning. Then I got up as softly as I could, and felt in the dark along the left-hand wall. Very gently, I unhooked one of the pictures from its nail—Marguerite with her casket of jewels. I crept over to my coat and took out the magazine, and an odd envelope or two that I had shoved in. Then I went to the washstand, and damped the brown paper at the back of the picture all round. Presently I was able to pull it away. I had already torn out the two stuck-together pages from the magazine, and now I slipped them with their precious inclosure between the picture and its brown paper backing. A little gum from the envelopes helped me to stick the latter up again. No one would dream the picture had ever been tampered with. I rehung it on the wall, put the magazine back in my coat pocket, and crept back to bed."

"They watched me constantly for weeks. Sometimes they'd ask me questions by the hour—I guess there was nothing they didn't know about the third degree—but somehow I managed to hold my own. The strain of it was awful, though. I felt that the horrors in store for me would be too awful once they knew I'd been only shamming."

"I ended in my being sent to a sanatorium at Bournemouth. I couldn't make up my mind at first whether it was a sham affair or genu-mouth impulsively. "You know who Mr. Brown is, don't you?"

"Yes," said Sir James gravely. "I have been morally certain of his identity for some time—ever since the night of Mrs. Vandemeyer's mysterious death."

"Ah!" breathed Tuppence. "For there we are up against the logic of facts. There are only two solutions. Either the chloral was administered by her own hand, which theory I reject utterly, or else—"

"Yes?"

"Or else it was administered in the brandy you gave her. Only three people touched that brandy—you, Miss Tuppence, I myself, and one other—Mr. Julius Herschimmer!"

Jane Finn stirred and sat up, regarding the speaker with wide, astonished eyes. Springing to her feet, she cried out angrily: "What do you mean? What are you trying to suggest? That Mr. Brown is Julius? Julius—my own cousin?"

"No, Miss Finn," said Sir James. "Not your cousin. The man who calls himself Julius Herschimmer is no relation to you whatsoever."

"One night I was whisked off to London at a moment's notice. They took me back to the house in Soho."

"They sent me in to wait on Mr. Beresford. (Of course I didn't know his name then.) I was suspicious—I thought it was another trap. But he looked so honest, I could hardly believe it. However, I was careful in all I said, for I knew we could be overheard. There's a small hole, high up in the wall."

"But, on the Sunday afternoon a message was brought to the house. They were all very disturbed. Without their knowing, I listened. Word had come that he was to be killed. I needn't tell the next part, because you know it."

She paused. "Then the papers," said Sir James slowly, "are still at the back of the picture in that room."

"Yes." The girl had sunk back on the sofa exhausted with the strain of the long story.

Sir James rose to his feet. He looked at his watch.

"Come," he said, "we must go at once. You have been followed here—not a doubt of it. When we leave the house we shall be followed again, but not molested, for it is Mr. Brown's plan that we are to lead him. But the Soho house is under police supervision night and day. There are several men watching it. When we enter that house, Mr. Brown will not draw back—he will risk all, on the chance of obtaining the spark to fire his mine. And he fancies the risk not great—he will enter in the guise of friend!"

Tuppence flushed, then opened her mouth impulsively. "You know who Mr. Brown is, don't you?"

"Yes," said Sir James gravely. "I have been morally certain of his identity for some time—ever since the night of Mrs. Vandemeyer's mysterious death."

"TOO POOR" AN EXCUSE

With due respect to the president of borough council, we cannot share his opinion that the town is too poor to provide an adequate sewage disposal plant if that is necessary to clear up the Rock Creek menace and stench.

Physicians have expressed the belief that the present sewage system holds strong possibilities of a typhoid fever epidemic.

Is the town too poor to take the necessary precautionary measures to prevent a possible loss of human life through negligence?

Emphatically, NO.

This is entirely too serious a matter to dismiss with the statement that it might cost the taxpayers a few paltry dollars. Members of borough council might excuse themselves with that now, but would it soothe their consciences if death would stalk into their own homes and remove their children, if they were to find death directly traceable to their apathy and neglect? That is not a remote possibility, for the opinion of our town physicians and health guardians is not to be passed up lightly in this respect.

It ought not be necessary to use strong and emphatic statements to emphasize the duty of council in clearing up the Rock Creek situation at the earliest possible moment. The annoyance and inconvenience to a large number of our citizens should be sufficient incentive to take immediate steps to bring about permanent and desired relief.

The people of Gettysburg are not selfishly inclined, as is evidenced on every hand, and council would probably be surprised to find the small amount of opposition that would develop to even a $50,000 expenditure if that is required to provide an adequate sewage disposal plant.

The happiest mosquitoes on earth live in the Belgian Congo, where people wear no clothes at all.

THE ROBIN

A robin, singing in a tree,
Saw something that I couldn't see.

Here in the self-same world, thought I,
We dwell beneath the open sky.

Yet richer is my lot than yours,
I dwell behind these friendly doors.

I have a roof above my head,
Within a nest you make your bed.

I am safe sheltered from the rain,
And yet I whimper and complain.

Reb-breasted bird, you are the prey
Of cunning foes both night and day.

Cold blows the wind where you abide,
Scarce is the food you must provide.

And yet despite the cares which sting,
With every rising sun you sing!

From your high place, courageous bird,
Your song of happiness is heard.

Surely, red robin, you must see
Something denied to men like me.

Against the pain and care of strife
You sing the glorious joy of life.

While I go, blinded by my care,
Wailing the burdens I must bear.

Surely, with all my strength to do,
I ought to be as brave as you.

Surely the countless joys I see
Should make a singer out of me.

Newlywed Is Arrested

A hurried wedding which took place a few days ago and which was soon followed by his arrest were two important events of the week in the life of Enos J. Burns, 21, who was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Allen Bartgis, of Frederick. Burns is wanted in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, on charges of forgery. He was arrested after a chase covering a period of two days during which he made several sensational escapes from the clutches of the law. Word was received in Frederick Friday that Burns was in Lancaster for forgery. The authorities were informed that Burns and his wife were staying at a boarding house on West Patrick street and Deputy Bartgis went there to arrest him. Burns saw the officer coming and when Bartgis went to his room to place him under arrest, he jumped from the bathroom on the second floor and fled from the yard in the rear. He managed to evade the authorities and at one time was said to be hiding in a tree in the old graveyard on the corner of West Third and Bentz streets. Later the chase was again taken up and arrest followed.

Wheat Crop Looks Good

After coming through most unfavorable fall, winter and early spring conditions, the wheat crop of Frederick county has reached maturity. Local farmers feel that a good yield may safely be expected, considerably better than last year. Few fields of wheat have already been cut in the county, but the big work of harvesting will not begin until next week. It is reported that harvesting has already begun in Washington county and that Montgomery county farmers are making preparations for the cutting of their grain. An average crop or even better is expected by Frederick county farmers. In the year 1922 the average production for Frederick county was 16.5 bushels per acre for wheat. The county was fourteenth in the state in the production of wheat. It is believed that the crop this year will exceed that of last summer.

Woman Falls Into Well

As a result of a fall when the flooring over a well gave away with her, Miss Ella Ecker, Mt. Airy, is confined to the Frederick City Hospital with a compound fracture of the ankle bone. Miss Ecker lives with her sister, Miss Sadie Ecker, in Mt. Airy. Wednesday afternoon about 5:30 she went out to the well with some milk she wished to cool. The flooring covering the well was badly decayed and broke under Miss Ecker's weight. She fell through the opening to another flooring about six feet under the first. In the fall she sustained a compound fracture of the ankle bone. At the time of the accident Miss Sadie Ecker was not at home and the injured woman was forced to remain on the flooring on the well shaft until her cries attracted the attention of the neighbor.

bors. It was about twenty minutes until aid arrived. Dr. Pearre was summoned and Miss Ecker rushed to the hospital, where the fracture was reduced. She is reported to be getting along as nicely as can be expected.

York

Barn And Garage Burn

The implement barn and garage on the Herman A. Hoke farm, at Roth's church, was destroyed by a blaze of supposed incendiary origin at about 2:30 o'clock recently. Two automobiles, a truck, all the implements used on a 220-acre farm, excepting a self binder, were destroyed and a number of pigeons and chicks were burned. The livestock was taken from the barn, but this proved unnecessary. Mr. Hoke with assistance of neighbors succeeded in saving the building. Mr. Hoke was awakened about midnight by his dogs' barking. He arose and made an investigation, but found everything in good order. Mrs. R. Harry Lau, telephone operator at the Spring Grove exchange, received a call, aroused the firemen at their homes, and the Friendship chemical truck of Spring Grove was soon on the way to the Hoke farm, but the company's services were not required. The loss is about $6,000, of which $4,000 is covered by insurance.

Newlyweds Get Joy Ride

Mr. and Mrs. Dean R. Geiselman, who were married June 9, were taken for a joy ride about the principal streets of Hanover by about 25 members of the H square club. The couple were conveyed in an old hack belonging to E. M. Grumbine, with a string of automobiles attending. After the ride the club men were served refreshments at the Geiselman home on Terrace avenue. Mr. Geiselman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Geiselman, Terrace avenue, while Mrs. Geiselman was before marriage Miss Edna Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Baker, Lemoine.

Washington

Watches Found in River

Efforts to identify seventeen gold and silver watches found in the Potomac River near Williamsport by Richard and Isaac Garrish last week proved futile. The watches were Elgin and New York Standard make and no one in Washington county reported having lost watches of this description. The Garrish brothers were fishing in the river which at present is very clear when they saw the watches on the bottom of the stream. They secured the jewelry and then notified the authorities who began an investigation in an effort to learn whether the watches were stolen from Hagerstown. The watches were found on the Virginia side of the river near the bridge connecting Maryland with West Virginia. The Garrish brothers recall that while fishing in the river one night last summer they saw a West Virginia automobile stop on the bridge when something was thrown into the river from the machine and it is believed that it was the watches. The authorities are of the opinion that the watches were thrown in the river by thieves who feared that they would be found in their possession.

Three Hurt in Crash

Three persons were injured when the automobiles driven by Guy J. Needy, 423 Summit avenue, Hagerstown, and Joseph W. Clark, Chicago, Ill., were in collision on the Western Pike near Huyetts Cross Roads recently. Logan Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Baker, was the most seriously injured of the trio. He suffered deep cuts on the head. Mr. Needy suffered cuts and bruises and Virginia Baker, a sister of the injured boy, suffered slight bruises. Mr. Needy and young Baker were taken to the Washington County Hospital where their injuries were treated. Mr. Needy was able to leave the hospital soon afterward and the boy will be able to leave in a short time.

Scouts Help in Stone Fight

A series of disorders at the Hagerstown Park culminated last night in a pitched battle between a troop of Hagerstown Boy Scouts who went to the assistance of Special Officer Lydie and a band of boys who were alleged to have been shooting fire crackers in the park. According to Officer Lydie, the boys were stoning

14-Year-Old Girl Arrested

Mary Wolfe, aged 14; Lloyd Barkdoll, aged 19, and Donald Aughinbaugh, age 17, all of Waynesboro, were arrested on serious charges made by Chief of Police Byers and Officer Carl when, in searching for the Wolf girl, who is at large on probation and who had not appeared at her home for two nights, the trio was found flagrante delicto at the home of Donald Aughinbaugh, who lives with his mother, Mrs. Nora Aughinbaugh, in Waynesboro. Mary Wolf had been in the charge of Mrs. Buck, county probation officer, at the county jail after her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Wolf, had turned her over as incorrigible. Mrs. Wolf requested Chief of Police Byers to find the girl, who has been on probation, and who had not been home for two nights. The girl left home, she stated, after being refused money to attend a show and after using profane language to her.

D. A. R. Holds Meeting

The first meeting of the Franklin County Chapter of the D. A. R., since the installation of new officers, was held at the Robert Kennedy Memorial Presbyterian Church at Welsh Run. Mrs. A. Buchanan, the new regent, was in charge. A ceremony for the placing of a marker on the grave of George A. Eaker preceded the meeting and the address was made by the Rev. Mr. Snook, pastor of the Welsh Run Church. The meeting opened with the singing of "America," after which the scripture lesson was read by the new chaplain, Mrs. Henry Anstadt, and prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. George A. McAllister. A salute to the flag was then given, after which Dr. McAllister gave an excellent address on "America, Queen of the Nations."

Statue is a Problem

The sub-committee, appointed by the Doughboy memorial committee, to arrange with the Franklin county commissioners for the placing of the statue in the courthouse plaza in Chambersburg, interviewed the commissioners. The commissioners blankly refused to give permission for the cutting down of the tree in the center of the plaza for the placing of the statue, but added that the statue could be placed to either side of the tree. The suggestion was made that the statue be placed on the approximate site of the southernmost tree, which formerly was located in the pavement in front of the courthouse.

Workman is Hurt

While engaged in constructing an overhead sieve in the Ressler-Latshaw bakery in the Wayne building, in Waynesboro, recently, an employee of the Jayburg Brothers' company of New York slipped from a scaffolding when it partially broke away and was injured when he fell to the floor eight feet below, by the force of the fall and heavy timbers falling on top of him. A physician dressed the man's wounds which consisted of lacerations principally.

Were the "Good Old Days"
Really Good?

When you hear an old-timer sigh for the days of his forefathers, smile quietly to yourself and think of this:

The ancients got along without automobiles, soap, stoves, tooth-brushes, window-glass, breakfast foods, telephones—without practically all of the things we consider the bare essentials of life.

There never has been a time when life bettered itself so rapidly and so consistently as now. New conveniences and new comforts are continually being thought out and brought out for your benefit.

In order to reap the advantages that are yours today, you must read the advertisements. They bring you news of all that the world of invention and discovery is doing to make your work easier, your home life more pleasant, your clothing and food problems less difficult. They keep you informed of all that is new in the markets and stores. They tell you not only about the goods, the styles, the varieties and prices, but also where and when these things are to be had.

The advertisements are messages from the business world to you. Heed them.

A Prohibitionist Repents

To the Editor:

Having been a prohibitionist all my life and one of those who preached that, when the United States went dry, our jails and penitentiaries would all be empty. I now feel that I have made a fool of myself in voting for prohibition.

We must admit that we never saw our country in a worse condition under old John Barleycorn.

Prohibition has failed. When we preached prohibition, we supposed it would eliminate all crimes and vice. We had an idea that with prohibition there would be nothing between man and the pearly gates but the choice of routes, and there are plenty of them, and new ones coming into existence every day, but it has turned out to be a dream. We shudder when we read the daily facts concerning the vicious and debauched public conditions which are rapidly debasing our boys and girls. It looks wrong to tolerate prohibition, when under it there is such an increase in crime, vice, etc., following in its wake today.

Look where prohibition sent the price of sugar. Out of several tons of sugar we have sold this season twelve pounds in every family went for home-brew of some description, whereas two to four pounds went for family uses.

Still there is an increase in crime due to prohibition. So in place of our prisons being empty, prohibition is responsible for the jam of penned-up criminals. We have government authority for this assertion. General Daugherty, before the Senate judiciary committee, said that, out of 147,000 pending cases, 50,000 were criminal, a large percentage of the latter growing out of violations of prohibition.

So we have learned that prohibition is responsible for the present-day voluptuaries. Stolen fruit is the sweetest, and forbidden booze is the most appealing.

The law was saddled onto our nation by the political machinery. Through prohibition the United States has lost millions in revenue, and it has cost millions more out of the treasury to pay the dry agents, some of whom have grown wealthy. Then look at the deaths over the land that occurred from home brews. Some are afflicted with blindness; others are on their beds for life with paralysis, and still many others are in their graves, all the results of home brew.

The land is full of liquor that in taste is almost equal to old-time government distilled, but the government distilled liquor did not get to the consumer for three years after it was distilled. Today it is distilled one day and drank the next, although it takes three years for all the poison to evaporate. Here is where the great amount of deaths come from in drinking today. We have nothing to say against the old-time beer, made of malt, hops and yeast. It was the liquid form of our daily bread. The Germans lived on it. We have been informed that in German burying grounds the ages of the dead are all near one hundred. We believe that now, with beer in the stores, the poisonous home-made decoctions will disappear.

A Prohibitionist Repents

To the Editor:

Having been a prohibitionist all my life and one of those who preached that, when the United States went dry, our jails and penitentiaries would all be empty, I now feel that I have made a fool of myself in voting for prohibition.

We must admit that we never saw our country in a worse condition under old John Barleycorn.

Prohibition has failed. When we preached prohibition, we supposed it would eliminate all crimes and vice. We had an idea that with prohibition there would be nothing between man and the pearly gates but the choice of routes, and there are plenty of them, and new ones coming into existence every day, but it has turned out to be a dream. We shudder when we read the daily facts concerning the vicious and debauched public conditions which are rapidly debasing our boys and girls. It looks wrong to tolerate prohibition, when under it there is such an increase in crime, vice, etc., following in its wake today.

Look where prohibition sent the price of sugar. Out of several tons of sugar we have sold this season twelve pounds in every family went for home-brew of some description, whereas two to four pounds went for family uses.

Still there is an increase in crime due to prohibition. So in place of our prisons' being empty, prohibition is responsible for the jam of penned-up criminals. We have government authority for this assertion. General Daugherty, before the Senate judiciary committee, said that, out of 142,000 pending cases, 50,000 were criminal, a large percentage of the latter growing out of violations of prohibition.

So we have learned that prohibition is responsible for the present-day voluptuaries. Stolen fruit is the sweetest, and forbidden booze is the most appealing.

The law was saddled onto our nation by the political machinery. Through prohibition the United States has lost millions in revenue, and it has cost millions more out of the treasury to pay the dry agents, some of whom have grown wealthy. Then look at the deaths over the land that occurred from home brews. Some are afflicted with blindness; others are on their beds for life with paralysis, and still many others are in their graves, all the results of home brew.

The land is full of liquor that in taste is almost equal to old-time government distilled, but the government distilled liquor did not get to the consumer for three years after it was distilled. Today it is distilled one day and drank the next, although it takes three years for all the poison to evaporate. Here is where the great amount of deaths come from in drinking today. We have nothing to say against the old-time beer, made of malt, hops and yeast. It was the liquid form of our daily bread. The Germans lived on it. We have been informed that in German burying grounds the ages of the dead are all near one hundred. We believe that now, with beer in the stores, the poisonous home-made decoctions will disappear.

HOSPITAL FOR VETS UNSOLVED

Senators Pepper and Reed Canvass State Without Satisfactory Results.

NEED GENERAL BUILDING

Mont Alto Site Not Considered on Latest Trip, Although Rumors Are Still Prevalent.

A recent trip taken by Senators George Wharton Pepper and David A. Reed, who have returned to Washington after covering most of this State, results in the hospitalization situation for veterans of Pennsylvania being apparently as far from solution as when they started on their tour.

During recent months considerable discussion has been carried on regarding possibilities of the government taking over the Mont Alto sanatorium as a place for treatment of disabled soldiers. Shortage of State funds for the purpose of continuing the hospital there was given as one of the reasons for encouraging federal purchase of the site.

Various other rumors have arisen, some of them concerning the eventual necessity of the State abandoning the present site in the South Mountain.

The most recent discussion of the present situation, however, is contained in an article written by J. Bart Campbell in the York Gazette and Daily, which was printed as follows:

During their trip Senator Reed, who is chairman of the special senate committee appointed to investigate the Veterans' bureau, was besieged by Pennsylvania ex-service men inquiring what was to be done to provide additional beds for the state's disabled and sick veterans.

Both he and Senator Pepper received protests from veterans against the proposed closing of the Erie, Allentown, Williamsport and Johnstown regional sub-offices of the Pennsylvania district of the Veterans' bureau.

Since their return here to Washington this phase of the acute situation has been somewhat relieved, in the judgment of General Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' bureau, by the decision of L. C. Vannan, manager of the Pennsylvania district, to merely reduce the force at each of these sub-offices instead of shutting their doors altogether.

But the gravity of the hospitalization situation is one that is giving both senators and General Hines considerable concern.

Many Have Tuberculosis
 The American Legion charges that there are between two and three hundred Pennsylvania veterans suffering from tuberculosis walking the streets because there are no hospitalization facilities for them. General Hines expects to hold a conference with Governor Pinchot at Harrisburg soon to determine how much foundation there is for the report that state hospitals are experiencing much difficulty and inconvenience in caring for "contract cases," and the state authorities are desirous of the government caring for veterans now in state institutions in a government hospital where they can be centralized. It is said the state authorities feel the state institutions are needed for the state's charges from civilian life.

General Hines said if such a condition existed the entire complexion of the hospitalization situation was likely to be changed.

Favors General Hospital

Senator Pepper favors the construction of a general government hospital in Pennsylvania where the state's disabled and sick veterans could be properly and adequately cared for under one roof and amid desirable and healthful surroundings.

But is pointed out by American Legion spokesmen that such an undertaking would require considerable money and time. It would probably take two or three years to complete such an institution. Nor is there any congressional appropriation or authorization now available for it. What is most urgently needed are beds immediately, say legion officials. Provide the first, and then, if a general hospital for permanent cases is found necessary, start work on it.

Looking For a Site

In response to the legion demand General Hines and other members of the United States hospitalization board are searching for a hospital or a hospital site. A personal inspection convinced General Hines the Markleton sanatorium would not do. The hospitalization board rejected Markleton on his say so.

On Saturday the general is planning to go to Philadelphia to look over the Ambler estate, near that city, of the late Senator Edwin H. Vane, which his brother, State Senator Congressman-elect William S. Vane offered recently to the hospitalization board as a hospital site.

He and his associates may next turn their attention to the long proposed hospital site at Aspinwall, near Pittsburgh, about which there has been as much controversy and criticism as there was about Markleton.

Must Have State Approval

The general expressed deep interest in the suggested use of the Erie Soldiers' and Sailors' home and other proposals for the immediate care of Pennsylvania's disabled and sick veterans, but it was pointed out authorization by the state legislature and approval of the governor would be necessary, as the proposals involved state institutions.

How soon a solution of the Pennsylvania problem would be found the general said he could not tell. He and the other members of the hospitalization board were proceeding as rapidly as possible with their task in Pennsylvania, which he admitted they were finding a "hard nut to crack."

S.S.S. stops Rheumatism

"MY Rheumatism is all gone. I feel a wonderful glory again in the free motion I used to have when my days were younger. I can thank S.S.S. for it all! Do not close your eyes and think that health, free motion and strength are gone from you forever! It is not so. S.S.S. is waiting to help you. When you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, the entire system undergoes a tremendous change. Everything depends on blood-strength. Blood which is minus sufficient red-cells leads to a long list of troubles. Rheumatism is one of them." S.S.S. is the great blood-cleanser, blood-builder, system strengthener, and nerve invigorator.

HOSPITAL FOR VETS UNSOLVED

Senators Pepper and Reed Canvass State Without Satisfactory Results.

NEED GENERAL BUILDING

Mont Alto Site Not Considered on Latest Trip, Although Rumors Are Still Prevalent.

A recent trip taken by Senators George Wharton Pepper and David A. Reed, who have returned to Washington after covering most of this State, results in the hospitalization situation for veterans of Pennsylvania being apparently as far from solution as when they started on their tour.

During recent months considerable discussion has been carried on regarding possibilities of the government taking over the Mont Alto sanatorium as a place for treatment of disabled soldiers. Shortage of State funds for the purpose of continuing the hospital there was given as one of the reasons for encouraging federal purchase of the site.

Various other rumors have arisen, some of them concerning the eventual necessity of the State abandoning the present site in the South Mountain.

The most recent discussion of the present situation, however, is contained in an article written by J. Bart Campbell in the York Gazette and Daily, which was printed as follows:

During their trip Senator Reed, who is chairman of the special senate committee appointed to investigate the Veterans' bureaus, was besieged by Pennsylvania ex-service men inquiring what was to be done to provide additional beds for the state's disabled and sick veterans.

Both he and Senator Pepper received protests from veterans against the proposed closing of the Erie, Allentown, Williamsport and Johnstown regional sub-offices of the Pennsylvania district of the Veterans' bureau.

Since their return here to Washington this phase of the acute situation has been somewhat relieved, in the judgment of General Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' bureau, by the decision of L. C. Vannan, manager of the Pennsylvania district, to merely reduce the force at each of these sub-offices instead of shutting their doors altogether.

But the gravity of the hospitalization situation is one that is giving both senators and General Hines considerable concern.

Many Have Tuberculosis The American Legion charges that there are between two and three hundred Pennsylvania veterans suffering from tuberculosis walking the streets because there are no hospitalization facilities for them. General Hines expects to hold a conference with Governor Pinchot at Harrisburg soon to determine how much foundation there is for the report that state hospitals are experiencing much difficulty and inconvenience in caring for "contract cases," and the state authorities are desirous of the government caring for veterans now in state institutions in a government hospital where they can be centralized. It is said the state authorities feel the state institutions are needed for the state's charges from civilian life.

General Hines said if such a condition existed the entire complexion of the hospitalization situation was likely to be changed.

Favors General Hospital

Senator Pepper favors the construction of a general government hospital in Pennsylvania where the state's disabled and sick veterans could be properly and adequately cared for under one roof and amid desirable and healthful surroundings.

But it is pointed out by American Legion spokesmen that such an undertaking would require considerable money and time. It would probably take two or three years to complete such an institution. Nor is there any congressional appropriation or authorization now available for it. What is most urgently needed are beds immediately, say legion officials. Provide the first, and then, if a general hospital for permanent cases is found necessary, start work on it.

Looking For a Site

In response to the legion demand General Hines and other members of the United States hospitalization board are searching for a hospital or a hospital site. A personal inspection convinced General Hines the Markleton sanatorium would not do. The hospitalization board rejected Markleton on his say so.

On Saturday the general is planning to go to Philadelphia to look over the Ambler estate, near that city, of the late Senator Edwin H. Vane, which his brother, State Senator Congressman-elect William S. Vane offered recently to the hospitalization board as a hospital site.

He and his associates may next turn their attention to the long proposed hospital site at Aspinwall, near Pittsburgh, about which there has been as much controversy and criticism as there was about Markleton.

Must Have State Approval

The general expressed deep interest in the suggested use of the Erie Soldiers' and Sailors' home and other proposals for the immediate care of Pennsylvania's disabled and sick veterans, but it was pointed out authorization by the state legislature and approval of the governor would be necessary, as the proposals involved state institutions.

How soon a solution of the Pennsylvania problem would be found the general said he could not tell. He and the other members of the hospitalization board were proceeding as rapidly as possible with their task in Pennsylvania, which he admitted they were finding a "hard nut to crack."
